

The products sold on this site (the “Products”) are only intended to be sold to consumers who will use them for personal, household, family, or bona fide business end use. Accordingly, you (i) acknowledge that the Products are not intended for resale, (ii) represent that you are not purchasing Products with the intention of reselling them, and (iii) represent that you are not acting on behalf of any entity that intends to resell Products.

If we reasonably determine that you are in the business of reselling Products, then, in addition to any other remedies available (including our right to refuse to ship to you and cancellation of your order), you will be charged for the full amount of any promotional value or rebate that was applied to the purchase or granted to you subsequent to the purchase. You agree to pay any such charges and authorize us to make such charge to the same credit card or other payment method you used to purchase any Product. If you do not have sufficient credit available, we will notify you and you must provide an alternative payment method.